Bobbie passed away Monday, July 7, 2003 at the home of her oldest daughter, Cathy Strickler, in Spring Creek, Nevada after a long struggle with Parkinson's Disease.

She was born Feb. 14, 1929 in Worland, the youngest child of Earl and Helen (Haynes) Holland.

She married George Wood on July 1, 1951 in Dubois. Together they built their home on the edge of Deep Creek Canyon where she was a dedicated partner in their ranching operations. Later they moved off the mountains to a small place on the Upper Nowood when Earl Holland passed away.
They then moved onto the 1/4 Ranch where they raised their four daughters.

Her lifelong passion for ranch life was hi-lighted by the raising of beautiful quarter horses and Charolais-cross cattle. Bobbie had an extraordinary understanding of animal behaviors and genetics, which she used to continually upgrade the quality of their livestock.

Bobbie's hobbies included clay sculpture, drawing, arrowhead hunting with her many grandchildren, gardening, poultry, keeping a journal, studying her religion and long walks in the country. She found great joy in being a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and served faithfully in Relief Society, Primary, Seminary and the Young Women's Program.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her sisters, Carol Hill and Mary Prewett; her brother, Louis Holland; and her beloved husband, George.

Bobbie is survived by her four daughters, Cathy (Barry) Strickler of Spring Creek, Joy (Phillip) Lyman of Ten Sleep, Diane (Philip) Hawkes of Caldwell, Idaho and Pearl Wood of Boise, Idaho; 25 grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren; and her extended family and many friends.

Memorial donations in Bobbie's honor may be given to the hospice
